[illegible] DISOBEDIENCE.

The Election of Adjutant General.

[SPECIAL TO THE WEEKLY ARGUS COURIER.]

AUGUSTA, January 19. This morning opened with no events of any special importance, although there were plenty of startling rumors in circulation. Before the Republican Legislature assembled a caucus was held by the members in the representatives' Hall. A committee was appointed to wait on Major Gallagher who had been nominated for Adjutant General, on account of a difference in opinion as to the necessity of a change in the nomination. The committee reported that they had conferred with Major Gallagher, and he agreed to leave the matter in the hands of his friends. The report was accepted. A proposition was made to defer taking any further action until night. An amendment was offered stating that there were rumors afloat that there were grave reasons why the Adjutant General's office should be filled to-day by some gentleman of responsibility and who is in full accord with the principles of government. "We are on the verge of events of importance," he said, "and I think it is time for us to express our confidence now and right here by the election of a permanent head to the Adjutant General's office."

The caucus voted to reconsider the nomination of Major Gallagher, and substituted Colonel George L. Beal, who was nominated by a vote of 79 to 8 for Major Gallagher. General Beal was subsequently elected by the Legislature and will fill out the unexpired term of the late incumbent, Adjutant-General and Treasurer.

Jeremy D. Cleaves of Portland was also elected Attorney-General when the Legislature was convened. The election of Secretary did not take place, as there is a disposition to make a change in the nomination, many believing that an older and more experienced man should be Treasurer than the present nominee for the position.

State Valuation.

To show that the Republicans mean work and that they propose to attend to important legislation at once, the subject of State valuation was taken up and a committee appointed to advise what course would be pursued. The committee are in session in the Augusta House.

The Successful Candidates.

Messrs. Robie, Stanley and Campbell, councillors-elect, were qualified. All of the members of Gov. Davis' Council are now qualified.

The Senate Convention.

There were present and voting when the branches assembled in joint convention, 105 Republican members. We were unable to discover that any Fusionists outside of members were in their seats.

The Seals Seal.

The communication of Secretary Chadbourne which he sent to the Legislature stating that when he took possession of the Secretary of State's office and found a broad seal of the state missing, as well as the returns of votes for Governor, county officers, Senators and Representatives, and other important papers, had left to offer a resolution providing for the procurement of another seal in the absence of the State seal in case it was not found. The seal to which the seal was alleged to be supposed to be appended will be opened.

Postage Commission.

Mr. Hale stated that it has been already proved that this government can do more than it will be run in spite of any unreasonable pleas to the way by the Union conspirators, a remark that drew forth an enthusiastic burst of approval. The house as adjourned over until to-morrow morning.

Mr. Longley Speaks for the Position.

Mr. Smith, the bogus Governor, talks reasonably with the rest of the usurpers. An acquaintance told him yesterday that he had better submit to the will of the people and go home. Smith replied substantially, I am informed, as follows:

"I am Governor of the State of Maine, and I would now submit under duress; I would be the laughing stock of the people of the whole state, and rather than to be a laughing stock, by God, I'd rather be shot. I am Governor, and I don't propose to yield to the Court, but intend to try it."

Governor Robinson Ordered.

Colonel Chamberlain went home this morning, and the duties of his office are being performed by Colonel J. M. Brown, his chief of staff. Major Robinson, Assistant Adjutant General, who was retired by Governor Davis and ordered to report to General White at Bangor, has accepted orders, and is a proper subject for court-martial.

Were Promptly Dismissed.

It is reported that the Auburn Light Guard, to-day, at their meeting, by a vote of 40 to 1, voted to disband. Other companies have also resolved to do the same thing. The Republican Legislature adjourned this week, the halls of legislation are immediately locked, and no one will be allowed to enter them until the Legislature comes together again to-morrow. The precautionary measures were taken to prevent the Fusion conspirators from entering the State House to re-assemble their bogus Legislature. If they could be allowed to set up their counterfeit Legislature again, the Republicans contend that it would be regarded as a quasi legislature that it was a legal body.

FUSILLATION.

To Everport.

[SPECIAL TO WEEKLY ARGUS COURIER.]

BUCKSPORT, Me., Jan. 19. The Republicans of Bucksport celebrated the recent hard victory in this State and the election of Governor Daniel F. Davis by a salute of thirty-eight guns fired from Fort Hill at noon to-day. The fields were, whistles from the steam mill and numerous more blown, made by the band.

In the evening a large bonfire was kindled and a meeting held in Memorial Hall to express the gratification for the successful issue of our late political battle. Speeches were made by Rev. T. Hindly, T. W. Brown, H. B. Mann, J. Josiah and others. Refreshments were served at the close of the speech making. Democrats and fusionists here are very much disheartened at the action of the Adjutant-General Lincoln concerning them.

[illegible] Session.

CONFLICT ON AT THE STATE.

Fusion Talk and Threats

A "Futuristic" Shock.

AN INTERESTING REVIEW.

[SPECIAL TO THE WEEKLY ARGUS COURIER.]

AUGUSTA, Jan. 19. The afternoon a considerable number of persons gathered before the street entrance to the Capitol grounds. Mayor Nash stood at the small iron gate with a posse of police officers. As about four o'clock the crowd was increased in numbers by the appearance on the spot of the Fusion members of the bogus Legislature. On Saturday last they had adjourned to meet at four this afternoon and they were here to obtain admission to the State House.

Applying for Admission.

Mr. Strickland, of the bogus Senate was the first one to apply for admission through the gate, but he was courteously refused by Mayor Nash. In a few minutes after wards Mr. Talbot, the so-called Speaker, and Mr. Lemson, the bogus President, the presiding officers of their bogus Legislative branches, followed by Gibbs, the Clerk of their bogus House, with his official record under his arm, approached Mayor Nash, the crowd gathering around them as they drew near, but were ordered to fall back by Mayor Nash, so as to open a passage.

The Conversation at the Gate.

I demand admission as Speaker of the House of Representatives, said Mr. Talbot.

I am directed by Governor Davis to say that the State House is closed to the public this afternoon, replied Mayor Nash politely, as no public business is being transacted in any of the Departments.

I declare outrageous as a member of the House, said Mr. Talbot.

My orders are peremptory, replied Mayor Nash. I have no discretion in the matter, but I will with pleasure forward any communication in writing to Governor Davis that you make.

Who are you? asked Mr. Talbot.

My name is Charles M. Nash was the reply.

Talbot then stepped aside to give way to Lemson, remarking pleasantly; we don't propose to resist.

Lemson then addressed Mayor Nash as follows in a low and somewhat faltering voice: I demand admission here as President of the Senate.

The State House to-day has been closed to the public by order of Governor Davis, replied the Mayor, calmly.

Then I demand entrance as a member of the Senate, said Lemson.

I am unable to allow you to pass as my orders are peremptory and allow me no discretion. The State House is closed to all persons except heads and officers of departments and officers of the Law, replied Mayor Nash, and then after a brief a recess ordered, If you have any communication in writing to make to Governor Davis it will have it forwarded.

Lemson made no reply but stepped aside when Smith, the bogus Governor, then advanced and before he ascended Mayor Nash pressed his burly form with so much force against that official that the Mayor was slightly displaced from his position.

I wish to go in, said Smith, gruffly.

I cannot permit you to pass replied the Mayor pleasantly but firmly. By what authority asked Smith?

That of Governor Davis, replied Mayor Nash, who has ordered the State House to be closed to the public as no public business is being transacted in any of the departments, none in the Secretary of State's office, none in the Treasury and none in the Council Chamber.

Who are you? asked Smith giving the Mayor a glaring look.

The Mayor smiled and answered I am the Mayor of Augusta and my name is Charles M. Nash. If you have any communication to make in writing to Governor Davis I will be pleased to have it forwarded to him.

Smith whistled about and then partially turned on his heel and giving an indignant look at the Mayor who stood with two police officers beside him, indignantly remarked in a low tone to one of them. Not one distinctly heard: Think his threats of you, as also I would go through you. The Mayor, who is an old soldier and heard the sound of battle on his person, smiled at this piece of harmless bravado and remarked: The State House is closed to public business.

I understand upon very well, muttered Smith, and your so-called Governor Davis. Smith then left the spot, saying something about the God d—d police is a by-stander.

Successive Scenes.

It was noticeable that Smith, in making his demand, either inadvertently or intentionally omitted to inform Mayor Nash who he was, when his name is on the State House and what right he had to go in. He was travelling incog, like other distinguished gentlemen.

Clapton on the Rocks.

Immediately after these former demands were made, Talbot, the bogus Speaker, mounted the stone coping along which the iron fence runs, and after getting himself of sufficient equilibrium, he took off his hat and made said: This House will now come to order. The announcement drew forth a shout of laughter and when it subsided the bogus Clerk read the journal of the proceedings of last Saturday, as he was directed.

Fusionists Move up Arsenal.

Then Pulsifer, the Fusion member from Lincoln, who was standing in a group and who is the man that had expressed his willingness to shed his last drop of blood in the cause of the conspirators offered an order which he read from a piece of paper, that the Senate committee, whose Fusion members is adjourn to meet at Union Hall to-morrow forenoon at ten o'clock. You have heard the order of the gentleman from Lincoln, said Mr. Talbot, shall it be adopted? and then without waiting for an expression he said it is a vote.

The Threatful Message.

Mr. Talbot then good naturedly shook his head to somebody in the crowd standing near him and remarked with a sort of satisfaction, We much rather have it come here (probably referring to the doings of his bogus House) than inside of that building and be placed at the State House.

Hawkes, of Readfield, one of the Fusion members who took his seat Saturday with the Republicans, got so much in the way of conversing with somebody and giving vent to his indignation because he had been refused admission to the State House, thrashed Gold, he said, that he was not a member of the Republican party.

Lemson on the Fence.

A motion was made to adjourn which was carried during which body sentiment "dodged," which occasioned a laugh. As soon as the gathering adjourned Lemson, the bogus President of the bogus Senate, who appeared confused, then mounted the stone curbing the Talbot, and from this rostrum called his men to order, which called forth a burst of laughter. Plaintiff's driver was then adopted in consternation, and then Lemson's gathering was pronounced adjourned simultaneously and followed "Pandemonium." After adjournment the fusion members quickly dispersed, disengaging in emphatic and characteristic language what they called the great outrage.

The Rumors of Riots.

Smith, the supposedly Governor, after he had installed the Augusta Mayor, remarked that he hardly dared to venture out on the street for fear he should be mobbed.

A Rich Suggestion.

To expect applause may outbreak by the meeting of the bogus Legislature this afternoon it was deemed prudent by the police authorities to strengthen their forces on duty in the State House. It had been reported there would be a large body of Fusion roughs and soldiers mobbers to get up a riot, and as every military company in the State had been ordered by telegraph by Acting Adjutant General Rice to be under arms and ready at a moment's notice The Capitol Guards, in this city were at their armory with their full quota of men. This precautionary measure was regarded as absolutely necessary from further information that Fusion leaders in the adjoining towns had been actually active the past twenty-four hours.

The police force at the State House was increased so much that it could comfortably muster a mob of several thousand, in any event that might be made. Colonel Edwards, of Portland, was present in the State House assisting in preparing also the action service in case the circumstances required it. In case of a police his position and those of his men would have been on the balcony.

A Police Stampede.

About 8 o'clock this evening a drunken man went into the Standard office where he had previously worried as a compositor and insulted one of the female compositors and committed an assault on one of the attendants of the paper who undertook to put him out. The fellow was arrested by the police and carried to the station. This circumstance gave rise to various reports that the Standard office was in danger which was the means of drawing a crowd outside who soon learned the facts.

Giving Up the Keys.

Mark Hardon voluntarily surrendered the keys of his office as messenger to-day to Major House the newly appointed messenger to Governor Davis and Council. Early this morning A. G. Andrews, the Secretary of the bogus Fusion Senate voluntarily and gracefully surrendered the keys of his desk to General Tilden, Secretary of the Republican Senate. Andrew's influence the past few days has been directed in favor of those Fusion members of the Legislature who are properly entitled in taking their seats in the Republican Legislature.

Opening the Gate.

Governor Davis has requested a continuance of Mayor Nash's personal services in keeping the peace, and that official has consented.

Frank Marshall, a soldier, merchant of this city, has been engaged all day in trying to frame quash the combination safe in Secretary of State's office, the key of which Sawyer, the Fusion Deputy Secretary, refused to deliver up. The job is a hard one and it is accomplished it is not quite sure whether the missing State seal and the election returns, supposed to be in it, will be found.

War Memorial Bound.

This evening 162 records of commissions were found in Dr. Lancaster's room, the Fusion superintendent of public buildings, by City Marshal White. Lancaster's room during the last few weeks has been the headquarters of Rhode's lieutenants. Marshal White also found a hundred forty members in Lancaster's room. The material of war was safely taken care of.

Where Those Gentlemen Are.

The Fusionists claim that it was a fault and unnecessary outrage that they were denied admission to the State House this afternoon and if those have been wrongfully kept out of the building the public and quite no doubt sympathize, but quarter of this afternoon have had "them" to remember their tormentors and walked them together on a solid policeman. They say that they intended no resistance this afternoon.

Where Governor Davis Is.

They talk of being recognized by Congress, which as they say, will provide a remedy. To-night it is thought they have sent a request to the Wallace Committee on Investigation in Congress to come on here immediately. It is evident the fusionists are not in a very cheerful or hopeful mood. They are quite silent as to the policy they will adopt, and confine their remarks to-night principally to a virulent denunciation of the Republicans and what has occurred to-day!

On Wheels.

It is reported that Sawyer, the Deputy Secretary of State, will bring a civil suit against Secretary Chadbourne. The Fusionists talk of putting their bogus Legislature on wheels and removing it up Portland. They claim that the Republicans made a great blunder in refusing them admission to the State House and that they will make the most of it.

Preparing a Bogus Legislature.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

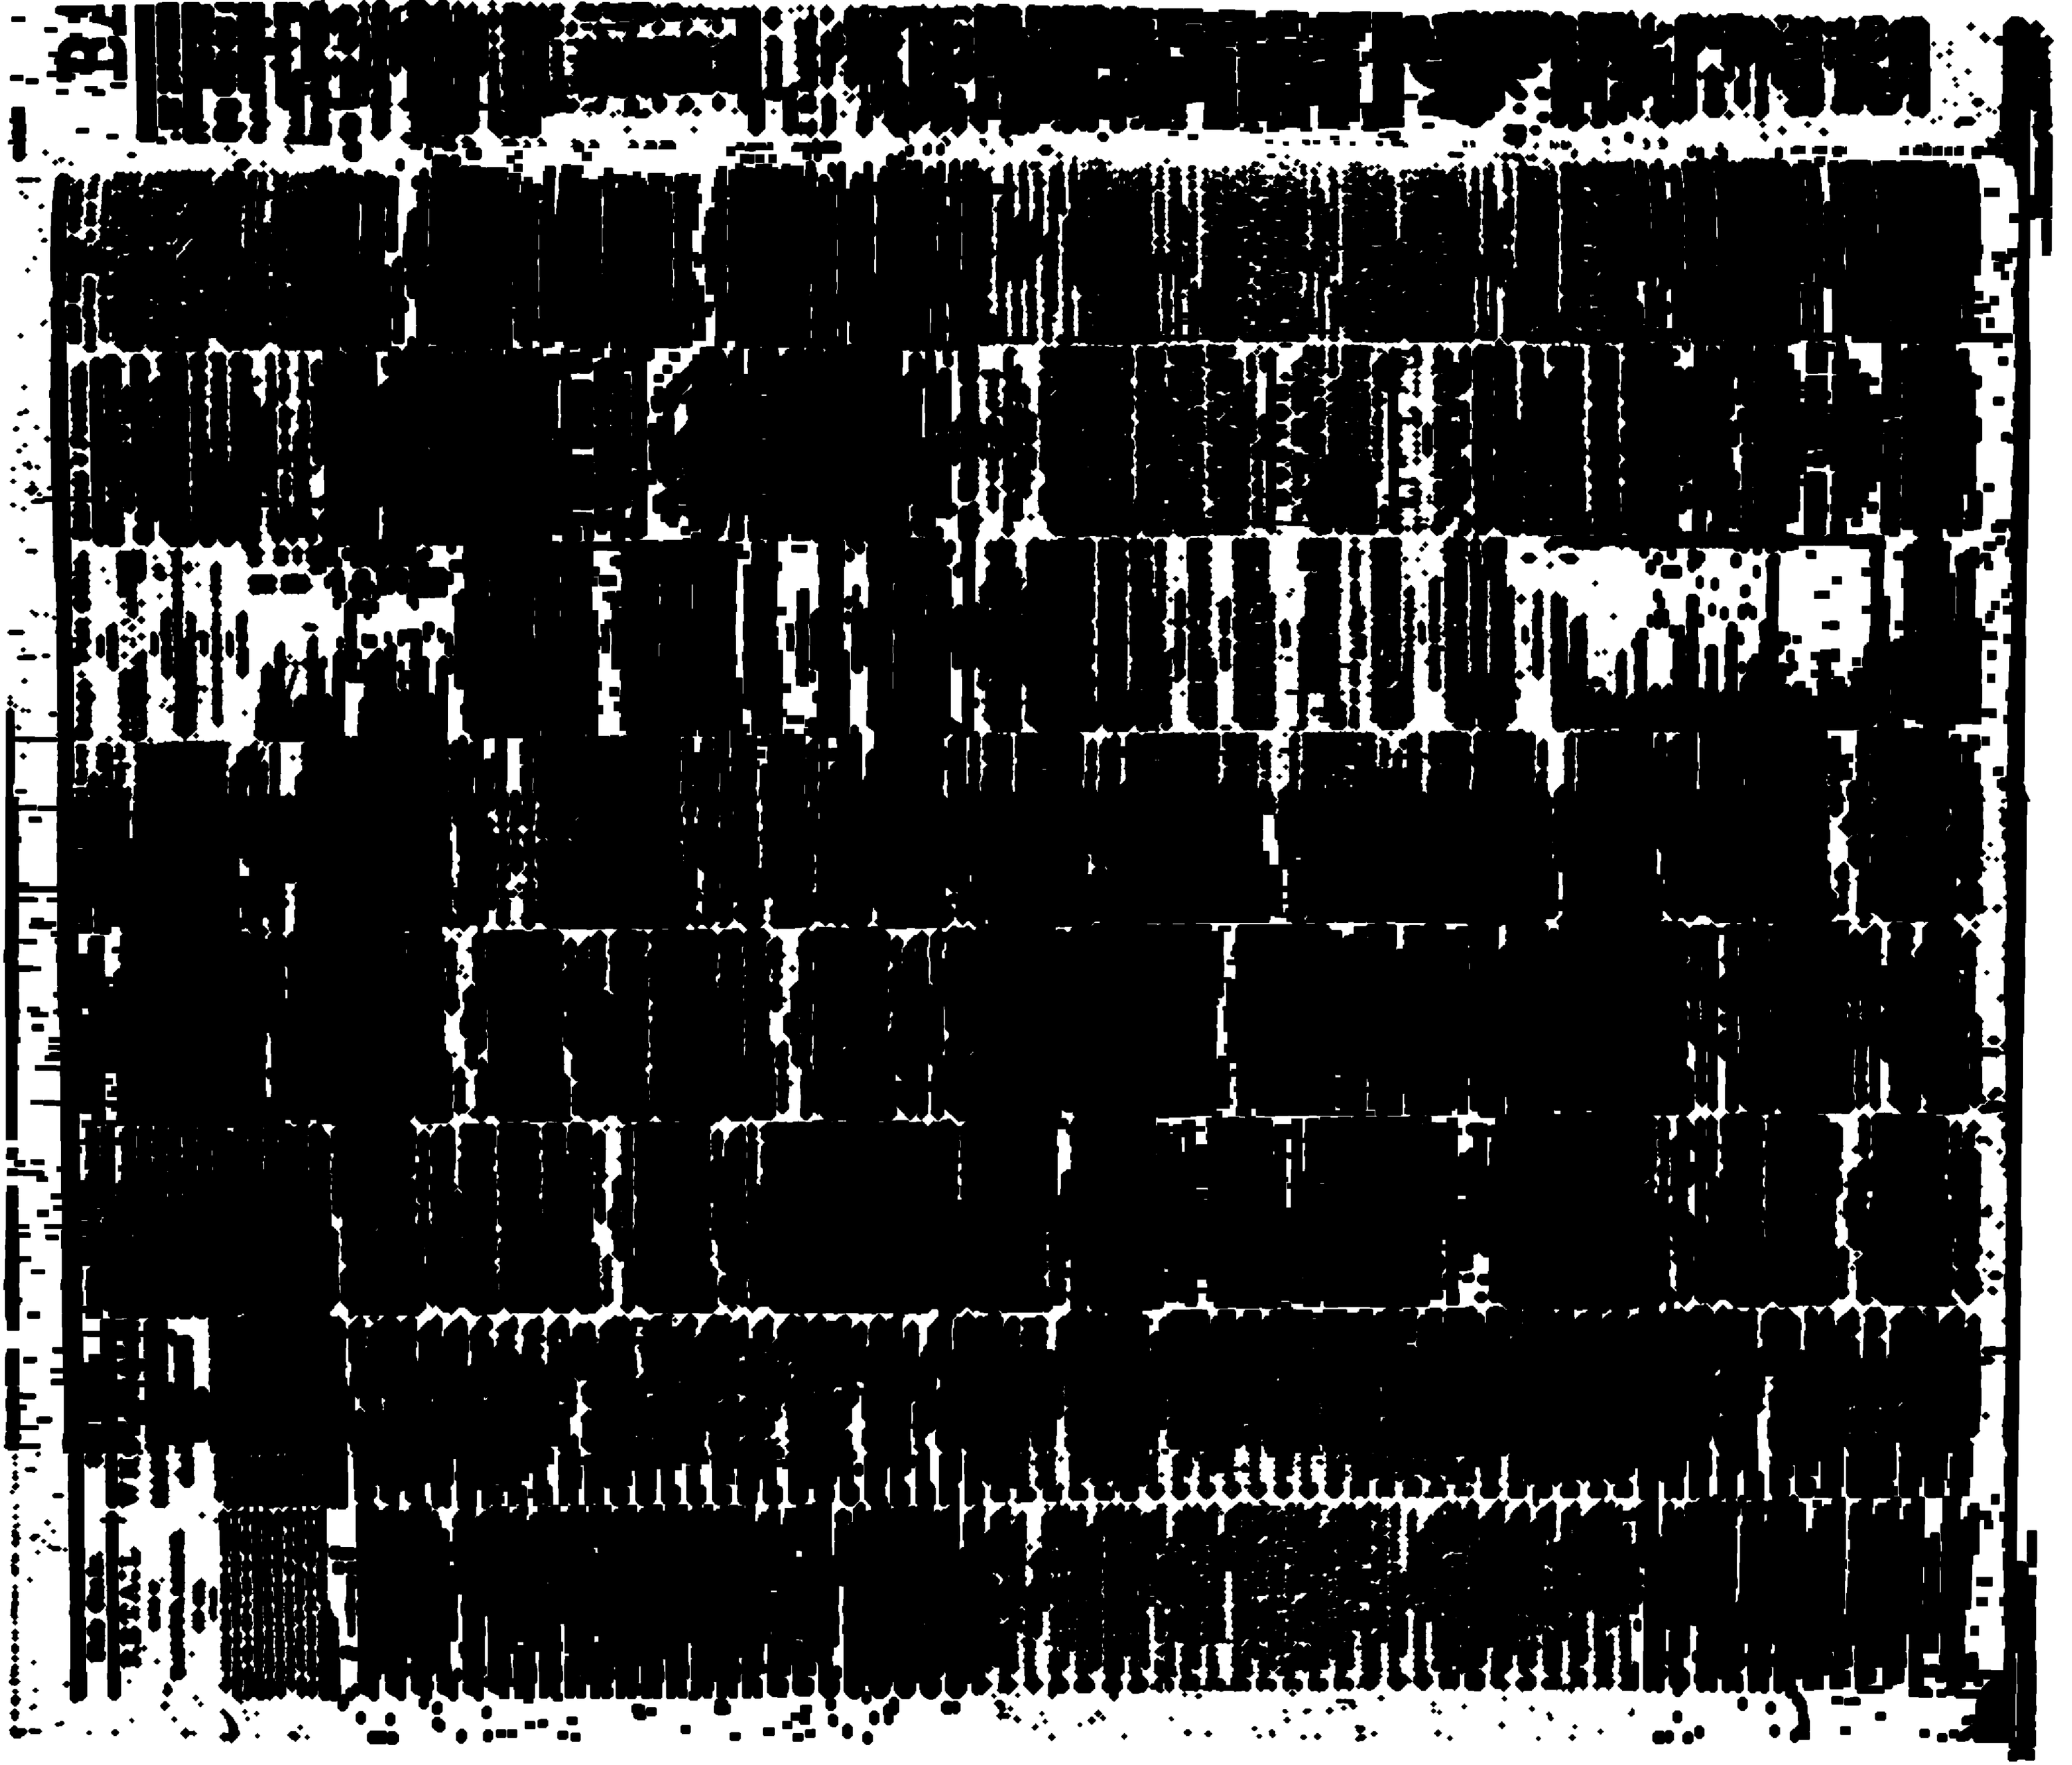
A meeting to-night of Fusionists occupied harmonious. They have secured Union Hall, where they will hold their "legislative" assemblies, long enough to organize their "Secretary of State" and "Governor" have secured rooms in the same building. Money enough has been guaranteed to run their "legislature" for a week and pay every man Saturday.

Inauguration Ceremonies.

After the so-called Fusion Legislature had left the gateway of the Capitol grounds, unable to gain admittance, they trooped in front of the Augusta House, where a large crowd collected, made up of Republicans and Democrats. James H. Lemson, Fusion "President of the Senate," gained a brief address adding his gratification that he was unable to gain admittance to the State House though he had as much right there as any other citizen. He was glad to see the crowd so civil and circumspect. John, C. Talbot, "Speaker of the House" made a brief speech in the same vein.

Where Chaos Comes Again.

Darius Alden, of Augusta, made a few remarks and called the crowd to order chosen for Maine. The crowd took up the challenge and gave three cheers with a will. Then followed cheers for Daniel F. Davis, Chamberlain, and the Supreme Court.

Governor Davis was at his post of duty all day.


The meeting for rejoicing by the Republicans will come off at Granite Hall, Wednesday evening and is to be addressed by Governor Davis, Senator Blaine, Hon. Reuben Hale, Capt. C. A. Boutelle, Hon. Lot M. Morrill, Hon. Chas. H. Hook and Hon. [illegible] Gov. Chamberlain, Gov. Robinson, Gov. Perham, Gov. Connor, Gov. Gov. Dingley, Gov. Gov. Gov.
